Remembrance Sunday Run

There was a good turnout for this Sundays Run, starting from St Martins car park, 7 runners and 8 walkers.

We were joined by Jumper, who had returned from sunny Tunisia for a holiday in windy Jersey.

Our Hare, Muff Diver, made apologies for todays run:

Apologies for it being a road run, this was due to the storm damage in the surrounding woodland which were now closed to the public.

Apologies for only having chip butties at the Royal later for the on downs (no sausages today due to rising costs)

Ballcock and Wendolene were issued with maps of the Route and it was On on through the lanes of St Martin. Trotsky nearly came a cropper when taking a photo of the pack, but fortunately the no 3 bus did stop for her to cross the road.

The runners and walkers met up in time for the 2 minutes silence ( the first for all who served, the second for those who didn't return) with the distant sound of the last post being played at the St Matins memorial service up the hill.

When we arrived at the Royal there was a bit of confusion, or lack of communication between management and staff, about our food order, but this was remedied by the chef who provided tasty chip butties with condiments.

It was good to see Molehills joining us at the pub again after being ill.

Not sure about the quality of the ale served in the pub, but down downs were enjoyed by our hare and the returning hasher Jumper

Date for your diaries:

On Sunday, Christmas Eve, there will be commemorative tree planting at the Orchid Centre in memory of Jumpers father McKinley

Jumper will be setting a short run, starting at 10.
