Hares:	Fuzz & Wendolene
Scribe:	Smuggler

Walk on

Our principal hare this week was Fuzz who put a lot of time and effort into laying the trail from St Martin's Public Hall and then arranging the On Inn from her garden. She was therefore delighted to learn that all her hard work was to be of no avail (cue wailing and gnashing of teeth). The problem was that most hashers were on marshalling duty for the royal visit the next day and the briefing had been rearranged for Sunday lunchtime. Consequently Tinky Winky (in his role as 'Principal Marshal') had asked for a short walk on Sunday morning instead of a full run. Fuzz did ask if that was really necessary but strangely preparations for the Royal visit took precedence and, reluctantly, she had to agree.

So a walk it was. As it happened word of the change had got around and hardly any of our small core of runners were in attendance. In fact the only runner was Ballcock who had somehow missed the memo. He did hide his disappointment well though (not!). So of we went for a very pleasant stroll through the lanes of St. Martin and got back in plenty of time to make the royal visit briefing.

(PS. No down downs to report either this week – I blame Charlie!)

The pack mostly in red, white and blue for La Visite Royale.

Disappointed runner and a brave smile from a hare.

Bridesmaids?

Nice maracas...

Which way now?
