Eastward Bound

We gathered next to the Harry Vardon statue in Grouville, along the road from the Pembroke Inn. A couple of hashers appeared to have wardrobe issues, ET had borrowed extra warm waterproof clothing from Ballcock and Jacko appeared to have frayed long johns on, but showed us that he was using a very old tubi-grip bandage to support his injured hamstring.

Our hare Bags Of It declared that he was feeling 'delicate' and he had made an error when replacing some of the chalk marks by pointing the arrows in the wrong direction, so perhaps it's fortuitous that the running pack is not as large as it was in years gone by and nobody went in the wrong direction during the 5.25 mile long run around the lanes of Grouville, please see photos for the route (thanks to Ballcock, and Strava)

Meanwhile the walkers enjoyed a walk up past all the wild fowl by Le Prés Manor, then along into Gorey returning to the Pembroke via Longbeach and the golf course. As per usual the on downs at the pub were plentiful and enjoyed by all.

There were no sinners this week so it was only the hare Bags Of It (was he still feeling delicate ?) who was thanked for a good long run.

Wardrobe by Ballcock...

Jacko's frayed 'long johns'?

Runners

...and their trail

Some baffled walkers

Is she going to shell out for it?

"Oh do come on!"

Solo down down

Bye bye xx
