The Victory at Trafalgar

Wet, Wet, Wet

When Software gave us our instructions for the run it was to say that the trail was probably washed away & we would have to manage. Which we did.

It was a soggy 10 hashers who assembled outside St. Brelade's Parish Hall. For the first time in a while the runners outnumbered the walkers 6 – 4. Our hare led us through the highways & by-ways of St. Brelade's whilst the walkers made up their own trail & of which I have no information. Both groups suffered the rain & were pleased that, although somewhat windy, it did not feel too cold – lucky it was not January!

The Trafalgar was a welcome haven with Software providing our solid refreshments & the pub having draft Otter available. Apparently, they had enjoyed a good day the day before & only had this brew available which was no problem as this is very acceptable.

Steptoe called the pack to order & updated them on the local sporting news – all good as far as Jersey goes. Although our Hash Rev. had returned from Puglia he did not have to be called upon as the substitute GM presented Software with the only down-down of the day for a good run of about 5 miles & providing the food. Unfortunately my Strava went on strike so more details are not available.

Despite the hostile weather conditions it had been a successful run with good refreshments to finish off. Well done to all that turned up. It was worth it! Unlike the French & Spanish fleets who came off very much the worst at the Battle of Trafalgar.

On on,

The damp pack assembles

A soggy scene

Onwards & upwards in the rain

It was even too wet for the ducks

Happy duo

Male contingent in the murk

Keep to the trail (if you can find it)

Wet wait

View from on high

Missed the trail

What is he saying?

It's those two again

Welcome repast

Post down-down cheer
