Hare:

Muff Diver

Well, What a change! The clear skies & warm sun of the recent days has been replaced with clouds, mist & drizzle. But this change of conditions did not deter the hardy hashers from turning up at the Priory for Muff Diver's run. Or was the attraction the prospect of sausages, chips & decent ale? I'll let you decide. Our GM reported on the local sports results before our hare gave us our instructions. However, he could not promise us any virgin territory.

The runners set off along the cliff paths at a pace followed by the walkers at a more gentle speed. Visibility was restricted with the mist & drizzle but it was quite warm & nobody felt cold although our harriettes found that they could not control their hair in the stiff breeze. At one point we made a diversion from the laid trail but this only led to private property so the walkers had to replace their steps but could at least claim they had enjoyed some virgin territory.

Although following similar trail with the runners having a longer route our athletes must have put on a fine effort as by the time the walkers returned to the pub our runners were safely ensconced in the top room enjoying a quiet London Pride or two. Please see the routes at the end of this report but disregard the time on the walkers route as I forgot to turn Strava off.

After attacking the sausage & chips the pack were called to order whilst the GM gave out his observations. Frisco, before delivering the punishments, pleaded with the hash to attend the Bike Bash plus BBQ at his pad on 8th August. If you cannot get to the bike ride there is no problem for any who wish to turn up in the afternoon. This done Smuggler was presented with a watery down down in celebration of yet another birthday. Finally Muff Diver was rewarded with proper ale for setting excellent morning's trails which were enjoyed by all despite the weather.
